Trend of Meeting Believed To Be Swayed By Reds' New Second Front Call.

(By Associated Press)
QUEBEC—A speed-up in Allied plans for the invasion of Europe to take full advantage of Germany's eastern flank appeared today to be a likely result of the current British-American strategy conferences here.

As President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and their command staffs went into the second full day of meetings, the sustained Russian campaign, winning a success equal to the most optimistic hopes of Allied observers, shaped up as the greatest single war development before them.

In the general picture of war strategy aimed at the eventual smashing of Germany it overshadowed even the swift Allied triumph in Sicily as well as the indications that an invasion of the Italian mainland was in progress of preparation.

For, as military observers here evaluate the situation, Germany is so heavily occupied with advancing Russian armies at present and even her vital rear positions in the east are so gravely threatened that a European invasion in the near future would tax her defensive resources to the utmost.

How fully these considerations have entered into the discussions here could only be estimated.
Since the president's arrival Monday there has been no word from the Chateau Frontenac or the historical citadel, scenes of the conferences, to give any inkling of the nature or progress of the talks.

There is speculation in connection with Mr. Roosevelt's scheduled visit to the Canadian capital at Ottawa next week that the Ca-

Civil Service Chairman To Check Cleveland Jobs.

Miss Gertrude Jones, chairman of the state civil service commission, the Cleveland Press said today, promised an immediate investigation of disclosures that scores of Cuyahoga county Republican politicians have been employed by the state highway department in Cleveland contrary to civil service laws.

"I am going to check with the highway department, find out what precinct committeemen are employed and insist that they be taken off the payroll," the Press quoted Miss Jones as saying.

The newspaper, in a series of articles dealing with politics in the highway department, charged payroll padding and employment of politicians ordered to work for Congressman George H. Bender, chairman of the Cuyahoga county Republican central committee, in getting out his personal newspaper.

URGES CITY TO SPEED AIRPORT

Labor Groups Vote Support
For Project, Ask Council
To Hurry Funds.

Organized labor in Mansfield today pledged its full support of the city's proposed airport project and asked city council to speed the appropriation of $100, 000 needed to purchase the necessary land for the airport expansion program.

The action grew out of a joint meeting of the AFL and CIO councils last night in which members voted unanimously to notify the state highway department and Mansfield officials that labor wants the airport project pushed to completion in the shortest possible time.

It was a motion by Desmond Walker, president of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company union, that brought the airport question before the labor groups.

Walker said he had studied the airport plans closely and was convinced that the project would mean a great deal to the development of Mansfield and would provide jobs for many of the city's workers after work is com-

Blood Donor Unit Arrives, Finds Its Schedule Filled

Red Cross Mobile Donor Unit arrived in Mansfield today for a three-day stay, and found the schedule more complete than at any previous time.

If all appointments are kept or there are no more rejections than usual, blood donor committee members said this morning they believed they would reach their full quota of 600
pints of blood for this month.
When the unit was here in July, five bottles for blood remained unfilled when the unit departed.

Response to the blood donor cards which were sent out this month was better than before also. All but 150 of the 700 cards mailed out were returned, a higher percentage than usual, the committee said.

The unit is located at the John Simpson Junior high school. It was open from 1:45 to 5:45 p. m. today. The hours Friday and Saturday are 10:45 a. m. to 2:45
p. m.

In September, the mobile unit will again be here for three days, Sept. 13, 14 and 15. Cards for that time will be mailed next week.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Berlin

A German commentator who

Bellville Flier Fights Japs On 'Grocery Run' From India

A Richland county officer, Lieut.
Faye Berry of Bellville, is navigating a "flying grocery store and truck line" that is delivering vital war supplies to U. S. jungle units in the Indo-Burma front.

Lieut. Berry was mentioned today in a delayed dispatch from headquarters of the 10th army air force in eastern Assam, India, by Albert V. Ravenholt, United Press correspondent, who accompanied the crew on one of its flights over the rough terrain.

Ravenholt said the crew originally arrived in India as a truck unit but that they have since "sprouted wings" and are delivering everything from coffins to garden seeds and fresh eggs to blood plasma to U. S. forces in out-of-the-way corners of the jungle country.

"There isn't a mountain valley so steep or a swamp so trackless that they can't get in," the correspondent wrote.

The "food bomber" as the DC-3 transport is nicknamed, Raven-holt said, flies within 50 feet of the ground with bags stacked in the open doorway, and when over the "target" drops the supplies.

At base headquarters, he wrote,
when an order comes in by radio,
a truck makes the rounds of the depot and comes out with a balanced ration for any desired unit.

Then parachutes are fastened on the bundles and they are ready.

Pilots who have crashed in the mountains are supplied a special package of medicines, rations, candy, fruit juices and cigarettes—all articles extremely scarce in that part of the world.

Ravenholt said the "bomber" has dropped as much as 125 tons of supplies in one day. There is no limit to what they can take to forward lines. They once delivered a complete X-ray unit when a doctor needed it urgently.

Lieut. Berry is the son of Mr.
and Mrs. Henry L. Berry of Bellville. He received his basic training at Ellington field, Tex., later going to Africa and China before being transferred to India. He entered the service in May 1941.

PAY TAXES YET?

Deadline Falls Tomorrow on Real Estate Payments.

Richland county real estate owners have today and tomorrow to pay their real estate taxes for the second half of 1942 without the assessment of an additional 10 per cent.

Though the collection today still stood $100,000 short of the total charge of $691,000, Treasurer Charles C. Payne was confident the full amount would be collected. He said many payments would come in by mail after the deadline and reports from the village collectors would not be made until late tomorrow or Saturday.

Collections to date amount to $579,922 after $30,127 was added to the total yesterday.

PLAN 'AIR RAID' FOR LABOR DAY

Civilian Defense Officials
Planning Show For Stadium

Mansfield's Labor day celebration Sept. 6 is going to have a war-time tone and it may serve as an opening for the county's Third war loan drive to produce $6,066,000 during the final three weeks of September.

Civilian defense officials and labor leaders were to meet this afternoon to map plans for a celebration at the Senior high school stadium.

Rudy Schneider, AFL chairman, said his organization wanted to cooperate in promoting a Labor day program, but he added that there was little chance that there will be a parade or any of the other customary entertainment features.

Plans are under way to stage a show of the city's civilian defense forces with a test air raid demonstration at Stadium field, said Ray Ward, senior air raid warden in the downtown area.

Ward said the civilian defense organizations hoped to work with the war bond campaign committee in launching the big drive which is scheduled to get under way Sept. 9. The civilian defense demonstration would show Man-sfielders why it's important to invest in war bonds, Ward said.

School Bus Gas Curb Hit; County Status Uncertain

While the state department of education said today hundreds of school children would probably be forced to walk or hitch-hike to school this fall unless the Office of Defense Transportation releases more gasoline for school bus operation, Boyd Robinson, Richland county school superintendent, said conditions in the county were still uncertain.

Robinson stated school bus routes had been curtailed to the greatest possible extent last spring and that the buses would operate as long as possible on the gasoline allotted them.

"When there is no more gas and the children can't get to school something will have to be done. I think parents will bring

AFL, CIO JOIN CITY WORKERS IN PAY FIGHT

Decide To Request Council To Reconsider Petition For $35 Increase.

HIT 'CLOSED' MEETING

Joint Labor Committee Seeks Explanation of 'Secrecy' on Wage Discussion.

Mansfield city employees and labor organizations had agreed today to join in a written request to city council to reconsider city workers' petition for pay increases.

Decision to launch another campaign to get the pay increase request before city council was reached last night at a meeting of city employee representatives and the joint AFL and CIO council at the CIO hall.

Letters will be written to council by Fire Capt. Frank Stahl, head of the city employees' committee on salaries, and the labor council which last night pledged its continued support to the city workers in their battle for more pay.

The city workers' request for a $35 monthly raise in pay was tabled until the first of next year at a closed council meeting Aug.
10. Following the meeting Councilman C. N. Shultz, spokesman for the council committee, said it had been decided to defer action on the pay request until the 1944 budget is prepared because it would be "too near the end of the year before pay increases, if granted, could be put into effect."

In an open letter today to The News-Journal, the joint AFL-CIO committee asked why council met secretly to decide the pay increase matter and why there was no action on the request since there is money in the city treasury to permit it.

"We feel that the people who protect our lives and city should get paid a higher rate of pay per hour than the janitors in our plants," the letter said.

Members of the labor council and city employees' committee complained at last night's meeting of council's method of releasing the results of the council com-

LONDON—The Germans are moving troops into Italy in considerable strength apparently intending to make a real fight for at least the northern end of that country, a competent British military informant said today.

"Several divisions" have been moved to Italy from France and Germany in the last week or two, but an exact estimate of Nazi strength in Italy is not possible now, said this commentator who cannot be identified further.

From other sources came in-only moving into Italy, but that their troops from western and northern France had taken over the French coastal stretch from the Italian border to Toulon—previously garrisoned by Italian troops.

SMASH: Jap Fleet Repulsed In Clash With U. S. Naval Units

(By Associated Press)

Admiral William F. Halsey's headquarters announced today American forces bloodily smashed a Japanese sea-borne attempt to land on newly captured Vella Lavella island, in the northern Solomons, killing or capturing hundreds of Japanese troops and putting four enemy escort destroyers to flight.

Out of 1,500 to 2,200 Japanese big barges, not more than 300 were believed to have reached shore.

A communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said a majority of the barges were sunk.

American warships intercepted the Japanese attack force Tuesday night off Vella gulf. A spoke-man said the enemy destroyers
"took off for home," but the Americans engaged them and in a half-hour battle in bright moonlight scored damaging hits on three destroyers and probably sank one. None of the American ships, which fired torpedoes and shells, suffered damage.

As the enemy fled, the Americans turned back to go after the Japanese landing barges, blasting them out of the water before all but a few could reach shore.

A spokesman said there were unquestionable "small groups" of Japanese on the island, but so far there had been no ground action.
Those who succeeded in landing apparently slipped into the jungles.

On the New Guinea front, dispatches said American and Australian troops scored new gains in their drive within five miles of the big Japanese air base at Salamaua.

Salamaua itself was described as largely in ruins from a tempest of more than 1,000 tons of bombs

MENACE: Reds Threaten Last Two Nazi Rail Lines of Escape

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Red army troops, slogging their way ahead through dogged German resistance south of Kharkov, today were approaching the two remaining railway escape lines supplying the beleaguered Nazi garrison inside the key Ukraine bastion.

A Soviet communique last night announced the capture of Zmyev, 20 miles south of Kharkov, in a "decisive assault" which smashed that enemy stronghold and killed
1,200 Hitler shock troops. Zmyev is less than 10 miles from the Kharkov-Lozovaya railway, main enemy supply line.

A few miles beyond lies the Kharkov-Krasnodar spur, which also must be severed before the Russians can close the Kharkov escape corridor, now less than 30 miles wide. The Kharkov-Poltava railroad had been cut earlier in the Red offensive.

Northwest and west of Kharkov the Russians also reported oversight of seven miles which resulted in capture of more than 50 additional towns and villages. Stubbornly contesting every fortified place, the Germans slowly fell back after suffering another 2,000 casualties, the communique said.

In the northeastern suburbs of shell-wrecked Kharkov, meanwhile, Soviet shock troops kept up the see-saw street-to-street battle against reinforced Nazi units which has been going on for the better part of a week.

In the wheeling movement south of Kharkov, which took them across the Donets river to Zmyev, the Soviet battalions were said to have scooped up great quantities of enemy war material, including mortar batteries, machineguns and trucks which the Germans left behind in their hasty retreat.

Gains in the Kharkov area were made against fresh reserves which had been thrown into action by the German command.

IN THE CAPITAL--

WASHINGTON—It took 12 days longer in the dust and heat of Sicily than the Allied high command had expected when the invasion began July 10. Yet the war is now advanced by another step.

In some respects glider and paratroop attacks on the night of the invasion did not accomplish as much as had been hoped for. That slowed down the start in some minor respects.

Also terrain in eastern Sicily proved more difficult than had been anticipated. Small German detachments were able to block mountain roads. One well-placed mine could make a hole that not even a jeep could get through. When some of us traveled over these mountain roads we had to make difficult detours that to trucks and heavier equipment were simply impassable. So although our forces were far superior in numbers, they could not get through the broken passes without long delays. That contributed to the escape of more German troops from Sicily than we had expected to permit.

Nevertheless we are turning our guns on Italy now. The delay was slight. On the whole the casualties were far less than had been estimated so that our troops are still able to go ahead.

Although the war as a whole may not be over for quite some time parts of it may end suddenly. No one wants to sponsor unjustified optimism. As James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization warns us, we must be prepared for hard battles yet.

We could well make a distinction. It is as dangerous to make all plans in anticipation of a long war as it is to make them all in expectation of a short one. On the military side we must be prepared for long resistance by Germany. That is the only safe policy.

But on the political side we must be prepared for a sudden collapse of the Axis. We cannot afford to be caught so ludicrously unprepared politically as we were when Mussolini resigned. His retirement was so unexpected that high Allied officials refused to believe the most reports, thinking possibly our own psychological warfare broadcasts were echoing back out of Italy. Our unceasing fumbling was humiliating.

So the wise rule is: Militarily, prepare as if the war would last forever; politically, prepare as if it were ending tomorrow.

Everywhere I have been in the last four months abroad, I have been asked what America is going to do when the war ends. They wonder whether our foreign policy will be overturned in the next presidential election. It worries everyone in Europe, although General De Gaulle asked me in Algiers if it were true as it appeared that Willkie was adopting Roosevelt's foreign policy while Roosevelt was swinging over to Willkie's domestic policies.

Some Americans I know argued with Swedish foreign office officials saying the Allies needed to know what Sweden intended to do about certain matters such as the shutting off of German troop traffic through the country. The Swedes replied that Sweden could be more certain of its future policies if Americans could say what their own future policy would be.

I return from four months abroad strongly convinced of several things about our future. Above all, I don't believe we can wait until after the presidential election to settle a number of points about our relations with the rest of the world. There is danger the war will not wait that long for us.

Congress has been in recess. Most of its members are home talking with their constituents. They will return knowing very accurately what their districts are thinking. I hope congress comes back to work ready to consider seriously, and to act on numerous recommendations that will set the course of American foreign policy.

FAIR ENOUGH--

NEW YORK—Paul V. McNutt's latest war manpower order is as dishonest and as political as those which went before, consisting, in large part, of an attempt to drive more thousands of unwilling civilians into the clutches of rapacious, dictatorial, brutal grafters and exploiters of the nation's peril. It is a device without any authority from congress and contrary to the intent of congress and the understanding and the rights of the people. It is a further approach to the scheme hatched at an interesting Sunday evening discussion in the White House more than a year ago, following which, a day or two later, Mrs. Roosevelt, in her commercial outlet for the sale of information obtained through her participation in the presidency, disclosed the theme of the conversation and personally proposed that "all of us," men and women, and with no stated age limit or exception, be told what to do by the government.

Now there may be and probably is a shortage of human energy and skill in the industries. The featherbedding and mock-work rules of the unions, which, in some cases, are enforced by the national government and which were upheld by the supreme court in an opinion by James Byrnes, one of the very men now engaged in terrorizing heads of families with uncertainty and worry, would account for much of this.

But there is no honest ground for a resort to the conscription of civilian labor, which is the intention of the McNutt orders, until every alternative has been tried. The alternatives have not been exhausted.

On the contrary, a recent dispatch reported that in New Mexico the War Labor Board had ordered a copper company to fire 160 miners in this vital industry on the demand of a union permeated by Communist influences because the men had refused to pay union dues. On the contrary, in Cleveland a few months ago, a group of 500 half-shift workers in a war plant, white-collar men putting in four hours a night for no other purpose than to help in the war effort, were given their choice of joining the union, which had done and could do nothing for them, or subtracting themselves from the manpower of the nation. The government upheld the union, whose spokesmen took the very practical and cynical position that if the union didn't get its rake-off from this fraction of the war effort these workers would have to get out or the regular shifts would strike.

Out of patriotism, most of the victims of this extortion of money and violations of right, yielded their money and waived their principle. In another case, not exceptional but strictly routine, an agent of the department of labor sent blank forms to the employees of a war-essential mine, soliciting grievances against the company in the manner of the slyster who goes about fomenting litigation for what there is in it.

There is a principle at stake in all this as important to the free citizens of the United States as any of those which have been written in the heavens as the purposes of the United Nations in fighting the military enemies in this war. McNutt, however, and the ingratulating but acquiescent Byrnes have undertaken to defeat this principle by force of the emergency and of powers assumed through cunning extension of the draft act, but never created by congress.

There would be some hope for the citizen in a nation-wide, concerted refusal to pay dues—the shutdown in reverse, directed against the unions. If enough workers were to refuse to pay, the union power could be broken and the government's conspiracy against the people defeated. But the people are not organized and this tempting break for freedom would be beaten back in detail by McNutt and the draft boards through the punishment of individual rebels.

personally proposed that "all of us," men and women, and with no stated age limit or exception, be told what to do by the government.

The next day Kay stood at a microphone and Guy Lombardo, from the control room, signalled her to sing. She sang just half a chorus "As Time Goes By," and then Lombardo flew out of the control room, waving his hands, shouting "That's enough!" He dashed out of the studio.

Kay burst into tears. Sobbing bitterly, she gathered up her music, her handbag, and her hat. At the door she was stopped by Lombardo returning with two other men.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"Home," she replied. "You said you'd heard enough."

"I meant I'd heard enough to know you're wonderful," Lombardo said. "I just went out to get the contract. Sign here."

Kay signed. You see, things like that do happen. That's why they keep coming to Broadway.

Robert W. Schilling, Toronto, O. R. D. 1, who in delving deep in a family history finds that he needs some information that old Richland countians may be able to give him. Dr. Schilling would like to know the names of the parents of John Hale who settled in Knox township, Jefferson county, Ohio, in the early 1800's. One of his daughters, Betsy, married John Mansfield and moved to Richland county. Anyone with any information concerning John Hale is requested to write to Dr. Schilling since gasoline restrictions keep him from coming to Mansfield personally to locate these facts.

One of the huge B-24 Liberator bombers shown on the front page of Tuesday's News-Journal in their raid on the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania Aug. 8 might well have been piloted by Lieut. Richard T. Miller, 250 West Fifth street. The Mansfield boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Miller, received a letter from him saying the mission, which he calls the "oily raid," was very successful. He told his parents in his latest letter that he has been "buzzing" around quite a bit and Mansfielders who read the article "Mission to Salonika" in the July 1 issue of Collier's in which the pilot was mentioned by Frank Gervasi the author, know the truth of that statement.

WALLACE SEEKS OPPORTUNITY TO 'CLEAR' HIMSELF

Would Make Speech Denying He Wants To Abolish U. S. Corporations.

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON — Vice President Henry A. Wallace today said he wants to make a speech before "some suitable business group"—preferably the United States Chamber of Commerce—to deny charges that he seeks to abolish corporations.

"In order that business men might not come to such a meeting under a delusion, it is my experience that 95 per cent of the corporations are either harmless or beneficial," said Wallace.

The vice president said that a recent speech attacking "American Fascists" was misinterpreted by some, who believed that he sought to attack all private business.

"My quarrel is with those corporations which try to make Washington a way station for Wall Street," he said. "The 95 per cent which do not follow this course possibly suffer more than anyone else from the practice."

"There are certain, very large corporations which are especially interested in international affairs and whose object is to control government. I object to them."

"The difficulty with corporations comes when certain of the larger ones try to control the agencies of public opinion, including even the schools, and then go on to dominate elections, control state legislatures, the national congress and even the president himself."

Wallace expressed hope that the taxation system can be modified such as to place an incentive before young and growing corporations, as a means of stimulating employment. One possible device, he said, would be tax deductions for those purchasing new machinery for expansion.

The vice president plans to speak in Chicago on aspects of the post-war world on Sept. 11. He is expected to vigorously attack international business cartels and call for action to prevent their growth in the post-war world.

Booth, who gave his age as 60, disabed his Bricker-for-president club yesterday of which he was executive secretary and apparently sole member, after being rebuffed by Gov. John W. Bricker's secretary, Don Power, when he sought an interview with the chief executive.

"I never heard of Booth and I never heard of the Bricker-for-president club," Power said in denying Booth an audience with the governor.

Booth, bespectacled graying gentleman, returned to his suite at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, and called the gentlemen of the press for a conference. Surrounded by telephones, passing out 25 cent cigars and dispatching telegrams to government officials, Booth announced the end of the club regrettably.

"I've got nothing against John, you know," he said. "You've got a good man for president here in Ohio. But he'd make a good senator. The man for president is Taft."

He then telegraphed Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R., O.) announcing his support.

The manager of the hotel became curious about all the activity. He asked Booth if he had the money to pay. Booth admitted cheerfully he had 18 cents. Booth was taken to city jail for an unpaid bill of $41.65, telling police happily it would hurt their cause—not his.

Father Accused Of Locking Girl In Shed 18 Days

NEW YORK — (AP) — Accused of locking his 13-year-old step-daughter in a concrete-floored shed behind his home for 18 days "for punishment," Thomas Brennan, 45, will appear in Long Island city court tomorrow on a charge of endangering the health of a minor.

The girl, Catherine Fitzpatrick, was discovered in the shanty by police after neighbors complained that a child was crying. She said she had been in the shed since Aug. 1. And let out "only to do the family washing."

"But they fed me every day," the girl told police. "I had two slices of bread and a cup of tea today."

Brennan pleaded innocent when arraigned yesterday and was paroled. He admitted, however, that he locked the girl in the shed 12 days ago at his wife's request.

Mrs. Brennan said, "I couldn't watch the other six children, and her too x x x She runs away on us."

BRUSH-OFF ONLY REWARD IN OHIO

Elderly Bricker-For-President Booster Has Fine Time But Lands In Jail.

(By United Press) COLUMBUS — H. Welland Booth, a suave elderly gentleman of Albany, N. Y., pondered the strange ungratefulness of Columbus, the capital of Ohio, in city jail today to his generous offer to aid the state's governor to become president.

Booth, who gave his age as 60, disabed his Bricker-for-president club yesterday of which he was executive secretary and apparently sole member, after being rebuffed by Gov. John W. Bricker's secretary, Don Power, when he sought an interview with the chief executive.

UP and DOWN THE STREET

Mansfielders don't like to hear the air raid sirens, even if they know the alarms don't mean that enemy raiders are overhead. Although civilian defense officials would like to test the sirens at intervals to see that all of them are in working order, Mayor W. J. Locke as city OCD chairman said there may not be any more tests except by state order. Whenever the sirens are sounded, even in the middle of the day, a number of persons complain that the noise makes them nervous or disturbs their sleep. "The city probably would know about it pretty quickly anyway if there should be an air raid," the mayor said.

Somewhere there's a Mrs. Pigeon who's wondering what has become of that husband of hers who stepped out for "just a minute" and forgot to come back again. She could find out at the sheriff's office where Mrs. John Culler of near Lucas called yesterday to say a pigeon with a band on its leg had settled down with the chickens. Of course, any explanation of a pigeon settling down with a flock of chickens is bound to be pure conjecture but a good guess might be that as he flew by on his way home one of the Culler chickens caught his eye. He stopped much longer than he intended and now he's afraid to go home because what he is going to tell Mrs. Pigeon about where he's been all this time?

STRIKE PICTURE SLOWLY CLEARS

Workers In Cleveland, Akron War Plants Start Back To Their Jobs.

(By United Press) The strike picture, marred yesterday by number of walkouts in industrialized Akron and Cleveland, cleared today as workers began returning to their jobs.

Nearly 4,300 members of the United Steelworkers union (CIO) whose walkout shut down three plants of the American Steel and Wire company, Cleveland and the Cuyahoga works, Newburgh works and the American works, voted last night to return to work in compliance with a regional war labor board order.

Company officials reported that near-normal shifts were operating at the 11 p. m. shift last night when the workers streamed back to their jobs.

The strike, which had been condemned by officials of the Steelworkers union, began Monday night when 800 employees left their jobs in the Cuyahoga works. It spread to other plants of the company.

Under terms of the WLB order, the company was instructed to reinstate five of seven unionists suspended in a dispute which started the walkout.

The labor situation at Akron also returned to normal when striking employees in four war plants returned to work.

Members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) in the wheel and brake division of Goodyear Aircraft corporation went back to their jobs at midnight after a federal conciliator was instrumental in their return.

MOTHER STANDS BY DAUGHTER IN DOUBLE SLAYING

Wounded Herself, Insists Girl Couldn't Have Killed Her Father and Brother.

(By International News Service) BURLINGTON, Ky. — Mrs. Jenny Kiger, wounded by a bullet fired from the same revolver which killed her husband and six-year-old son, clung today to the 16-year-old daughter charged with murdering them.

Joan Kiger was permitted to visit her mother in a hospital last night after she had pleaded not guilty when arraigned on a charge of murdering her father, Carl Kiger, 49, city commissioner and vice mayor of Covington, Ky., and her brother, Jerry.

Mrs. Kiger accepted Joan's story which was that she was awakened in the Kiger summer home early Monday by an intruder and seized a pistol and fired at him. Police said that 15 shots were fired. One wounded Mrs. Kiger in the hip and the other killed Kiger, and Jerry.

The mother had told police that Joan was subject to nightmares. Just before the shots were fired, she heard her cry out: "There's a crazy man in here and he's going to kill all of us. I don't want to be left alone in here."

She shouted to Joan, then, to ascertain if she was in the throes of a nightmare. The shots followed.

Sawyer Smith, Covington attorney and friend of the Kiger family came here to represent Joan.

"She didn't do it," he said, "She said she didn't do it and I believe her. The state has not offered a motive. The state told Judge Cropper (Judge C. I. Cropper before whom she was arraigned), it had been unable to establish a motive."

"If Joan is a pathological case, and I don't believe it, then she should have medical treatment and not 12 hours of questioning by officers."

Joan was questioned extensively by police after they arrived at the Kiger home. Judge Cropper ordered police to take her to see her mother. She was then returned to the Boone county jail where she is held without bail.

Police said $1,515 had been found in the Kiger summer home.

"Oh, lookie," said the bride in the flaming red shirt and the dirty white pants, stepping out of a car at North Lake, bending over and picking up a mildewed old purse.

"Oh, lookie, lookie, lookie," chortled the bride, opening the old purse. "A dollar bill, three pennies, and a bus slug. Oh! What a fortunate bride am I! Whoopie!"

Now the bride was Whitey Cassel. And across the back of the flaming red shirt were emblazoned the words, "Provident Loan." And don't get any funny ideas about the dirty white pants either. They were the bloomers of her softball uniform, and they got that way from sliding into second, and you would be dirty too if you spent your life sliding into second. I think.

But this is the story of an old purse. Inside was a piece of paper, with the words written on: "Evelyn Jochia, 576 Daisy street."

"She lost that thing way last June," says Whitey, "and she don't even give me the bus slug." Now that is no way to treat a bride, and if I have one handy I would gladly give her a slug, but I am fresh out.

"Batt'ries for North Ridgeville—Pitts and Pitts."

That's the way the umpires used to yell it when Dorothy Pitts was pitching, and her sister Arline was catching.

Well, Dorothy's still pitching and Arline is still catching but here's the way the umpires will announce it since Wednesday night when Dorothy followed Arline into the matrimonial league:

"Batt'ries for Ridgeville—Borecki and Vismiski."

"Pitts and Pitts" was much easier, if you didn't lithp.

Dorothy can thank the good natured Provident Loans for her opportunity of tripping down the middle aisle Wednesday night. Providents were scheduled to play Ridgeville that evening, but when informed that Dorothy wanted to get married on Wednesday, they said:

"Sure, we'll gladly take our trip on Tuesday. We have two buses of our own, and we know just how you feel."

This doesn't seem quite in the sport editor's line: "The bride wore a beautiful white veil, a gray sweat shirt, a natty pair of bloomers, buttoned down the side, and from her ring finger there dangled an old ball glove and a pair of spiked shoes.—Take it away, Emily Post."

Brewers' Margin Cut to One Game

By Associated Press

M. Vanhook's American Association team leaders weren't given much time to sleep off last night's exciting exhibition of baseball against Columbus, that defeated their first place margin to one game.

The Brewers, who committed four errors and saw their pitchers issue 10 errors on balls in losing, 13-5, had to get up in time for a 10 o'clock morning game with the Red Birds today.

Third place Indians were unable to capitalize on the Milwaukee setback. The Indians after sweeping four straight games, lost a twin bill test match to St. Paul, 3-2 and 1-0.

Louisville moved into a fourth place in the National League, after a 7-4 loss to Cincinnati, 7-4, in the first game lost to Kansas City, 1-0.

Senators Build for Flag Race

Haven't Given Up on Chances at Pennant.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE way the rivals of the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees are reacting to the unexpected sweep of these two clubs to the major league pennants is a topic that may interest the class today.

Some still are trying to strengthen themselves for the present season, some are trying to rebuild for next year and some simply are waiting for the schedule to end.

The Washington Senators are the prize example of the first group. It would take a miracle to move the Senators ahead of the Yankees, but Clark Griffith isn't overlooking any chances. Yesterday he finally put through a deal with the St. Louis Browns for Third Baseman Harland Clift and Pitcher John Niggeling.

The Old Fox, who was a slick trader before Branch Rickey's name became synonymous with big deals, has been trying to get Clift for at least two years and if he had been able to land him to plug the Senators' gap at third base a month ago, might have managed to make a race in the American league this year.

As it is, the deal quite likely will let the Senators finish second, a jump from seventh place last year. They lost their runner-up spot yesterday, though, by dividing a doubleheader at Chicago. The White Sox nosed them out in the first game 3-2 in 14 innings, but Washington rallied to win the nightcap 4-2. The Senators made twin double plays in the two games.

The Yankees were ambushed by the Cleveland Indians 9-8 and 7-5 in morning and afternoon games and this feat enabled the Tribe to move up to second place.

The Philadelphia Athletics, who stand out among the clubs that are merely marking time till the season ends, dropped their 12th consecutive game 4-0 in the face of a five-hit pitching performance by Bob Muncie of the Browns and the Detroit Tigers nosed out the Boston Red Sox 1-0.

The Brooklyn Dodgers tried out two youngsters on the mound yesterday and dropped both ends of a doubleheader to the Chicago Cubs 7-5 and 13-6.

Hal Gregg and Red Barney, two youngsters who had reported from Montreal only a few hours earlier in the day, started the games for the Dodgers and each gave four hits and six walks in addition to some wild pitches before they were eliminated in the early innings.

The St. Louis Cardinals divided a mid-day doubleheader at Philadelphia, winning the first game 6-0, and dropping the second game 6-3.

Cincinnati split a doubleheader at Boston, winning 3-0 for Bucky Walters after losing 4-3 and the Pittsburgh Pirates split with the New York Giants. A single by Pete Coscarino in the third gave Hank Gornicki his third win in two days 7-6 in the opener and Carl Hubbell won the nightcap 3-2.

The other game saw Local 758 swap Ideal Electric 2-0 as the union piled up its runs in bunches like grapes, although collecting only 11 hits.

Unusual, to Say the Least

Hank Gornicki

Wins and losses came in double doses for Hank Gornicki, Pittsburgh pitcher and Nate Andrews, Boston Braves' pitcher, in a doubleheader played between the Bucs and Braves in Boston. Gornicki won both games and Andrews was charged with both losses. Gornicki went the route in the opener and hurled relief ball in the second game. Andrews was knocked out of the box in the first and then hurled losing relief ball in the second. Scores were 8 to 0 and 4 to 3.

NEW YORK—(AP)—As Henry Armstrong and Fritz Zivic drew nearer to retirement, they are blossoming out as managers—leading others to take the punches that "can't hurt us."

These 30-year-old ex-champions are nearing the end of long careers, although each tackles a formidable opponent next week. Armstrong, who arrived in New York yesterday to meet Corp. Ray Robinson Aug. 27 said: "I'll retire definitely Jan. 1."

Zivic, training in Philadelphia for Monday's non-title brawl with Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery, said last night: "I'd like to have 25 more bouts before I quit; that'd make me 200."

It is our belief that if either suffers a bad beating next week he will retire immediately.

Both fighters hope to have a small "table" of boxers in action before he retires. Armstrong already has two welterweights, Cecil Hudson and Terry Gibson and seeks a good lightweight.

Boxing will miss Hank and Fritz when they retire, because they had the combination of ability and color that made the turn-of-the-century boxing ring a place where the greatest fighters in ring history—the only man ever to wear three crowns simultaneously: lightweight, welterweight and welterweight. Zivic—with his cleverness, punch and "bag of tricks"—carved out a lasting niche in the welterweight hall.

Now, though, in the November of their careers, both still have the unusual distinction of being among the game's top gate attractions.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)—The board of governors of the professional golfers association's Philadelphia section wants an "immediate investigation" of the reason Joe Kirkwood, the Australian-born trick shot artist, failed to play in the Ryder cup matches at Detroit last week.

Secretary Jimmy D'Angelo announced the board unanimously refused, at a meeting last night, to accept the resignation of Kirkwood, who said he was dropped from the lineup of Walter Hagen's challenger team after being invited to play.

"We demand that the PGA executive committee call all parties concerned together," D'Angelo said. "We want the matter straightened out to the entire satisfaction of Joe Kirkwood."

Indians Take Two From Yanks

Heath Breaks Up Second Game With Home Run.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians were back in second place today and Jeff Heath had the satisfaction of seeing an experiment prove successful.

The muscular outfielder attempted to increase his production at the plate by resorting to a private, after-hours batting practice session earlier this week and the results were evident yesterday as the Redskins edged the New York Yankees 9 to 8 and 7 to 5 in a morning-afternoon doubleheader.

Heath started the Tribesmen off with a two-run homer in the pre-lunch engagement and broke up the 14-inning nightcap with another round-tripper. His day's total of runs batted in amounted to seven.

The second game blast climaxed an uphill battle in which the Indians came from behind twice to tie the score. The league leaders had a 4 to 1 advantage as the Tribesmen came to bat in the ninth, but a walk to Pinch-Hitter Pat Seery, doubles by Roy Cullenbine and Manager Lou Boudreau and a three bagger by Heath knotted the score.

Charley Keller broke the deadlock with a homer in the 13th but the Redskins evened it again when Mickey Rocco doubled, took third on Boudreau's infield out and crossed the plate on Ray Mack's long fly. Heath's homer behind Cullenbine's double provided the clincher in the 14th.

The clubs move from League park to the Lakewood stadium for the third game of the series tonight. Allie Reynolds will oppose the Yanks' Tiny Bonham.

BOSTON—(AP)—It could be that the Cincinnati Reds might, under certain circumstances and if everything broke right and all other things being equal, give the St. Louis Cardinals a scare for this year's National League pennant this year.

They are in second place, only a trifle of 1½ games behind the Cards, and apparently in no immediate mood of reducing their present pace, in which they have won seven of their last eight games and apparently broken for good from the 500 swamps.

Somebody said a few weeks ago that what the National League needed was another "miracle team" like George Stallings' Boston Braves of 1914 (last place to first) and it would be funny if the Reds were it.

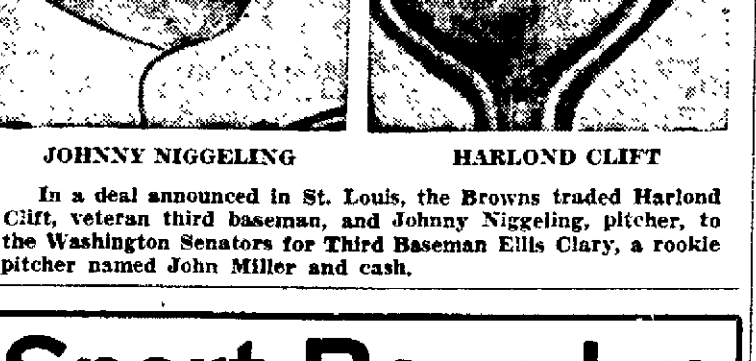

The Boston Braves of 1943 broke the Reds' six-game winning streak yesterday in the top of a doubleheader, 4 to 3, but the Reds picked up behind Bucky Walters' seven-hit pitching for 5 to 0 in the nightcap.

For Bucky it was his fifth straight win after some rocky early season going, and if Bucky is going places at last, so also maybe are the Reds.

Ray Starr for the Reds and Red Barrett for the Braves are today's pitchers.

Fishing and Boating Trips

The Pleasant Hill Boat Club had their annual picnic last Sunday and it was a huge success. All entertainment and food was furnished by the club and the picnic was attended by most of the members and their families. Games and contests lasted all afternoon and the boys took everyone a boat ride. It was decided to make the picnic an annual affair.

The fishing picked up over the week-end and I was surprised by a mob for bass plugs Sunday morning. A number said that the bass were hitting and some nice ones were taken on Silver Minnows and Hawaiian Wiggles.

My guess is that sometime between now and next spring Pleasant Hill Lake will be brought up to its old level. How do I know? Well, in its present state everybody is unhappy about it. The fishermen can't fish, the boatmen hit snags, and the people in Perryville still have water in their cellars and fill the lake!

Li-Cut worms went so fast last week that we were out of them for two days. We have a fresh shipment in now and there will be plenty this week-end. Ask for the new California bait. It sure gets the fish. Need a reel? We still have several popular models in stock.

Trotting has been very good in the Island district. Large catches have been reported by fishermen for two weeks. Many Mansfield people are chartering boats and many catches of 100 or more pickerel have been reported.

36 Pros In National Open Golf

Pro-Amateur Event Opens Tourney Today.

By TOMMY DEVINE
CHICAGO—(AP)—The victory national open golf tournament, a war-year event patterned after one of the links most successful peacetime classics, stages a competitive pre-view today with a 36-hole pro-amateur test over the Beverly Country club course.

The victory open is modeled after the famed masters, held for nine consecutive years at Augusta, Ga., until the war wiped the event off the calendar. Following the masters' formula the field is limited with players qualifying for participation on the basis of their tournament accomplishments.

Virtually all of golf's great names are included among the 45 open contestants. Included are seven former national open titlists and five performers who won the coveted masters itself.

Thirty-six professionals and nine amateurs comprise the field. The pro contingent includes Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., a former open king and twice victor in the masters; Lt. Lawson Little, now in the navy; Melvin (Chick) Harbert, the brilliant Battle Creek, Mich. youngster now in the army; Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y.; Ky Lafoon of Tulsa, Okla.; Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, recent all-American open winner; long-hitting Jimmy Thomson of the San Diego coast guard station; Buck White of Greenwood, Miss.; the golfing Turners, Mike, Joe and Jim; Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs, Colo.; and Craig Wood of Mamaronock, N. Y.

The tournament field has a liberal sprinkling of servicemen and should one of the soldier or sailor golfers win the open championship, 20 per cent of the net gate receipts will be given to the recreation fund of his post or station. Otherwise all receipts will be used for the rehabilitation of war wounded.

For today's pro-amateur, top rating goes to the team of Nelson and long-hitting Frankie Stranahan, former Toledo star now in the army and stationed at Nashville, Tenn.

The Beverly course ranks as one of the mid-west's finest tests of golf. It last was the scene of a major tournament in 1931 when Francis Ouimet won the national amateur title there. The course measures 611 yards and has a par of 72.

The playing program for the open calls for 18 holes Friday and Saturday, with a 36-hole wind-up Sunday.

Messina Civilians Quit Caves, Bare Stories Of Horror

NATIVES FLED NAZI CRUELTY, ALLIED BOMBS

Prayed For Air Attacks So That Day of Deliverance Would Come Sooner.

By RELMAN MORIN
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Dispatches from Sicily said terrified civilians began emerging today from caves cut into the living rock of Messina's hills.

The Allied victory permitted them to return to the sunlight. One cave measured 600 yards in length and 30 feet in width. It was found in tunneling the hillside nearly a year ago when the first raids hit Sicily.

Whole families made their home through the past six months.

Toward the end of the Sicilian campaign, they seldom left its dark recesses. They told stories of pain, disease and misery that surpassed any fictional horror-writing.

Allied bombers were in the skies day and night.

But the cruelty of the German troops and their callous disregard for all human considerations made the people pray for even heavier raids, they said, because it meant quicker deliverance.

During the time when the tunnel was packed tight with families 30 babies were born there, an Italian doctor said.

He worked in the flickering light of kerosene lamps, often dimmed by the haze of rock and dust from bombs and shells hitting the escapement overhead.

There was no disinfectant, very little material for bandaging and few surgical instruments.

The doctor told British air force officers that the Germans refused all professional assistance, confiscated all medical equipment and supplies, kept the single ambulance themselves and even prevented Italian hospital workers from lending their efforts to alleviate the suffering of the dirty, horror-crazed people in the cave.

People died in there—women in childbirth, new-born infants, men from shock, hunger and disease. The doctor was his own sanitary inspector. Sometimes he had to remove corpses himself. Others were too weak or too stunned to help.

Not all died from these causes. Some were shot by the Germans.

The people said that even the battle-tough Nazi officers and soldiers began losing their nerve as the raids continued day and night. When the Allied field artillery began shelling the town, too, they fought like wild animals for places in the rocky shelters.

MIDDLE EAST FLIER CONTENTS FOR '43 TALL STORY LAURELS

(By Associated Press)
BURLINGTON, Wis.—At last it has happened—O. C. Hulet, OSS prevaricator of the Burlington Liars' club, has a yarn he would like to enter in the 1943 lying contest but is reluctant because he thinks it might be true. "I got the story in a letter from Flying Officer Ralph W. Ritchie, stationed in the Middle East with an RAF squadron," Hulet reported. "Ritchie says he is an American, born at Ottumwa, Ia., and is trying to transfer to the American Air forces."

"Ritchie says his story is more true than he cares to state. If it is true, this is the first time I ever was kidded with a bona fide tale. But it would be the oddest thing that has come out of this war."

Ritchie's story: "My plane was badly holed during a recent operational flight. I had to fly low over the sea—only had one motor working. Two hours later I sighted what appeared to be an enemy submarine. I decided to shoot it up, so I went down to within five feet of the water.

"Just as I approached I noticed it was a whale and I had to laugh as my front gunner was blazing away. But I didn't laugh long.

"As I passed over the whale, he blew and the water he spouted drowned out my remaining motor and I had to land in the sea—the only pilot in this war, I think to be shot down by a whale."

WAGE INCREASE TURNED DOWN

Galion Light Plant Employees Told Pay Hike Not Possible.

GALION—That an increase in wages for employees of the Galion municipal light and power plant cannot be met at this time unless an adjustment of private and commercial light rates could be made to increase the working capital of the plant, was explained in a report of the finance committee at the meeting of city council, Tuesday night.

The report stated that due to necessary improvements at the plant, the fiscal year will end with a deficit of $10,000.

Light plant employees had asked for a 10 per cent raise at the last meeting of council, the communication being referred to the finance committee.

Service Director Charles Geiger explained that the administration in the past year and a half has had to spend about $21,000 for repairs which should have been made previously. He charged that repairs to the light plant had been neglected in the past six or seven years and that the plant was in a run-down condition until 20 months ago.

Council accepted the resignation of George Cook, a councilman from the second ward which will become effective immediately.

Mayor William A. Mann's report for the past month showed a total collected for fines, costs and forfeitures to amount to $161.90.

LEARN SPEEDER ARRESTED IN CITY HAD LONG CRIME RECORD

David M. Hunter, who was found shot to death in a ditch near Akron three weeks ago, and who was arrested by State Highway Patrolman M. G. Basilus in Mansfield two months earlier, had been fingerprinted 12 times by police departments in the mid-west as a suspect in a variety of crimes, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said today.

Hunter was arrested in Mansfield after he had been spotted by Patrolman Basilus driving at a high rate of speed on U. S. Route 42. He failed to heed the officers' signal to stop and a wild auto chase followed into the city. Hunter was apprehended when the patrolman pulled alongside the car with his gun aimed at the driver's head. With Hunter at the time were three companions.

Hunter was turned over to Cuyahoga county authorities who "wanted him" for auto theft. His companions were not held. He was released under $5,000 bond in Cleveland municipal court. Three days later he was found dead.

Cleveland police said Hunter had been identified by picture, as one of a gang who held up a tavern in Cleveland. Police expressed the belief that he was shot by members of the gang because they believed he was too "hot."

Two of the men with Hunter when he was arrested here were arrested by New York, N. Y., police three days later on charges of robbery. Cleveland police said.

Richland Sales Tax Receipts Up $2,919 During Week.

Richland county went along with the state in showing a marked gain in sales tax receipts during the first week of August over the corresponding week last year.

County retailers collected $2,919 more in tax revenue in the first week of this month when receipts amounted to $12,922, the state treasurer's report showed. The state-wide gain was $53,706 over the first week of August, 1942.

The increase for the first week of this month put Richland county's collections nearly $14,000 ahead of last year. Receipts in the county now amount to $338,175.

U. S. WARSHIPS SHELL AXIS ON ITALIAN BOOT

Air Fleets Join In Unceasing Attack on Enemy Forces and Installations.

roads and railways which might be employed by the remnants of German and Italian forces which escaped from Sicily, pitting the tracks and destroying enemy vehicles.

"Medium bombers attacked bridges at Angitola and roads and rail communications at Ponte Di Staletti," it was announced.

Ground activity was "limited to occasional exchanges of artillery fire across the Strait of Messina," headquarters announced.

Fighter-bombers left a small Axis naval vessel in a sinking condition off southern Sardinia and medium bombers sank an enemy merchant craft in the Gulf of Eufemia, just north of the Gulf of Gioia.

"The Bizerte area was again attacked by enemy air craft last night," an aerial communique said. "Six enemy bombers were shot down. Two enemy aircraft were destroyed on the night of Aug. 17 in addition to those already reported."

From all operations, three Allied aircraft are missing, the bulletin said.

Palmi and Gioia Tauro are located on the western side of the mainland where the Gulf of Gioia makes a deep dent in the coast. Palmi is the larger municipality and is nearer Messina than Gioia Tauro.

While the American Seventh army was advancing along the northern coast of Sicily, U. S. warships frequently lent support by smashing enemy concentrations and installations ahead of the troops, but they never before had attacked the mainland of Italy.

British naval forces, however, have bombarded Italy on several occasions.

It was announced at headquarters that military activity had simmered down to occasional exchanges of artillery fire across the strait near captured Messina.

It was announced officially that the entire Italian Sixth army was destroyed during the Sicilian campaign.

This makes a total of five armies Italy has lost since the beginning of the war. The First, Fifth and Tenth were destroyed during the African fighting. The Eighth disintegrated in Russia.

The Sixth army originally was composed of two corps comprising 300,000 men with 1,700 guns and 150 tanks.

Officers said the Germans lost two complete divisions, killed, wounded or captured, and a large amount of heavy equipment including an unlisted number of 60-ton Tiger tanks, many of which were seized intact and were capable of being put into immediate operation.

King Congratulates Gen. Eisenhower.

LONDON—(AP)—King George VI today congratulated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the forces under his command upon the successful conclusion of the Sicilian campaign, which he said caused rejoicing throughout the British Empire.

The text of the king's message: "On the final accomplishment of the occupation of Sicily I wish to send to you and all members of the forces that you command with such distinction my heartfelt congratulations on a great achievement."

"Throughout the British Empire we have watched with admiration the ordered progress of the campaign by sea, land and air. We rejoice at its successful conclusion."

"I should be grateful if you would convey to my British and Canadian troops special assurance of my pride in their share of this victory."

Mighty Air Fleet Crosses Channel.

LONDON—(AP)—Thunderous explosions off the French coast shook southeast England today after big formations of Allied bombers and fighters swept across the channel.

LONDON—(AP)—A mighty fleet of Allied planes flew out across the English channel in daylight today to resume the aerial offensive against the European fortress of the Axis.

The formations which headed over the Strait of Dover included bombers and fighters and the roar of their engines resounded over the coast almost without interruption for more than two hours.

RAF fighter-bombers carried out sweeps over France and the low countries last night, destroying a German patrol boat off Ostend, bombing the Pox airport, and shooting up eight railway locomotives, it was announced today.

Johnson, 21, of Waverly, O., was among 15 midshipmen who appeared at the marriage license bureau here yesterday and applied for permission to wed Friday, the day they will be commissioned ensigns in the U. nadian parliament might hold a special meeting to hear him speak. Speculation over the part which the Russian offensive is playing in these discussions is concerned with the timing of Allied operations against Germany's western flank.

Military men agree that the time to hit this side of Germany is when the Nazi military machine is off-balance in the east.

Such timing, it is noted, would not only limit the reserves of men and munitions which the Germans could throw into counter attacks but also would weaken the resistance to the Russian advances and prove a powerful factor in keeping the Red armies rolling.

This latter purpose apparently is the motivation behind the latest hue and cry in Moscow for a "second front." The line taken by the army newspaper Red Star is that the struggle for Sicily had failed to divert "a single German division from the Soviet front."

How far this reflected Premier Stalin's views, of course, was not known, but it was interpreted as suggesting a plea for help, an argument that if the Allies want the present tide to continue against Germany they must act, and act soon.

Whatever plans for invasion are in progress were made months ago, but it would be the function of the combined chiefs of staff and the final decision of the president and prime minister here to determine the extent to which these plans could be speeded up in order to take full advantage of the present situation.

When their directives are shaped they will, as has been customary in the past, be communicated with all possible speed to Stalin.

There is considerable belief that the highly important task of courier has been delegated to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who arrived yesterday.

Eden's presence also gave rise to speculation the conference might undertake the solution of some of the multiplying political problems arising out of the swift movements of events in Europe. The possibility that Secretary of State Cordell Hull may come here from Washington served to emphasize the potential political aspects of the meeting.

Lost Lamb Case Being Heard In Common Pleas Court.

The case of young Freeman Swank's lost lamb and what became of it entered its second court today as hearing began in county common pleas court.

After the lamb was bought by the boy for a school agricultural class project it strayed away. Bringing suit for $30 by his father, H. O. Swank, and agricultural teacher at Butler school, Dale Friday, against Jess Mishey, the boy charged Mishey with having disposed of the lamb for his own use.

The case was tried in Worthington township justice of the peace court and decided for the plaintiff. Mishey then appealed the case to the county common pleas court where hearing began today.

dropped on the stronghold by Allied planes in the past month.

Completing the staggering blow to Japanese air power in New Guinea, 95 more enemy planes went up in flames yesterday in the second successive daylight attack on airbases in the Wewak area, 350 miles up the coast from Salamaua.

An official estimate listed 28 Japanese planes destroyed in the air and 77 on the ground in the latest attack. Coupled with 120 others destroyed in Tuesday's double-barreled assault by Allied raiders, the Japanese air force in the Wewak region was said to have been virtually wiped out. An officer at the front said not over 10 Japanese planes out of the original force of 225 or 230 were now able to take to the air.

Heavy Damage to Hongkong Reported.

CHUNGKING—(UP)—A Central (Chinese) News Agency dispatch from Kwangtung province today quoted travelers from Hong Kong that heavy damage to the former British crown colony had been inflicted by American bombing raids last month.

The dispatch said a large number of Japanese officers were killed at a military conference when a bomb struck the Shanghai bank building and that Japanese police headquarters also were hit.

School Bus Gas Curb Hit; County Status Uncertain

results on getting the children to school," the superintendent predicted.

According to the state department the students involved in the question of gas allotments are those who live within two miles of their school or within a mile and a half or the nearest school bus route in more than 100 districts in 35 counties.

Delbert Woodford, assistant state director of education said ODT in June questioned school bus schedules in these districts, contending they failed to comply with an order to discontinue transportation for children residing within two miles of a school or a mile and a half from a bus route.

Although ODT later granted certificates of war necessity in approving bus schedules in 40 of the 100 districts, 40 others still are awaiting theirs. One county basis, Woodford said, bus certificates have been forwarded to not more than a third of Ohio's 88 counties.

Since ODT ordered school bus schedules curtailed last November to save gasoline and rubber, Ohio school districts have reduced bus operation by about 750,000 miles per school year, Woodford said.

You can help your children get along in school! You can help by feeding them sensibly, by getting them to bed early, by lending a sympathetic ear to their little problems.

And, before you even send them off to school, you can help by dressing them wisely and well.

See that they get shoes that support their feet and spare their nerves, clothes that fit comfortably and look "regular," outdoor things that will keep them warm without hampering their play. That's the kind we offer at Penney's!

U. S. SOLDIERS KEEP INTEREST IN BOY SCOUTS

Americans In London Form Club To Keep Abreast of the Times.

(By International News Service)
LONDON—An amazing variety of interests occupy the leisure moments of American officers and soldiers in England, when they take time out from the grim business of war.

In London one group of Americans, whose interest in the Boy Scout movement did not lessen with their entrance into military service, have founded the first American Service Scouts club to keep alive their interest in the work, and to keep abreast of developments within the worldwide organization.

Staff Sgt. Richard Griffith, of Norfolk, Va., is credited with organizing the club, which now has won the official sanction of the military authorities, who have given it an official status by placing it under the Special Services Section of American Headquarters.

Griffith, a chief clerk in one of the headquarters, was Scoutmaster of Troop 7, sponsored by the Wesleyan Bible class of Epworth Methodist church in Norfolk before he donned khaki.

Col. J. L. Blakeney, ETO senior chaplain, who has found time for scouting activities during his service all over the world was one of the early members of the London organization, and serves as a member of the advisory board, of which Captain James R. Gay, 3 Crest Lane, Swarthmore, Pa., is chairman.

Private Leslie Tichnell, a cook in the headquarters company of the London Base Command, who was assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 28, Long Beach Calif., sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, is treasurer of the group.

The United States navy, represented by Pharmacist's Mate Ralph E. Fordyce, who was Scoutmaster of the Kiwanis sponsored Troop No. 10 of Parkersburg, W. Va., shares the army's interest in boyhood.

The great Lone Star state of Texas is a long, long way from London, but despite this, Private John M. Davis, who was Scoutmaster of Troop 7, of Austin, sponsored by the local Knights of Columbus, finds many nights pleasure attending meetings of the London club.

Corporal Carl Merryman, who "skipped" Sea Scout ship "Chinook," at Corvallis, Ore., continues his interest by serving the London club as chairman of its Sea Scout committee, while Sergeant Harold C. Bond, ex-scoutmaster of Troop 10, Philadelphia, Pa., is the London club's representative in a mid-England American base.

Bond, when not on military duty, visits Boy Scout troops in his vicinity and to a large extent has taken over the guidance of the British Scouts deprived of their trained leaders by the war effort.

Sergeant James Kos, who was assistant scoutmaster of Troop 3 back in his home town of Winona, Wis., is vice president of the London club, and one of its most active supporters.

Lieutenant F. Jay Nimtz, whose military job is keeping track of American prisoners of war in enemy hands, and enemy prisoners in our hands, is also very active in the London Scouts organization.

Nimtz's scouting activities include have been Cub commissioner in his home town of South Bend, Ind., and years as a member of various troops during his own boyhood.

First Lieut. Samuel F. Lambert, Army Mail Service, was a neighborhood commissioner in Baltimore, Md., before coming to London, and like all the others, keeps his finger on the pulse of the Scouting movement through membership in the London club.

The club, which originally met in one of the headquarters offices, has outgrown such makeshift facilities, and with its present large membership has taken over a nearby theater for meetings.

SAVES LIFE

SEATTLE—(INS)—A middle-aged farmer is alive today because his wife didn't have time to buy overalls he wanted. The farmer, Albert Anderson, 46, was prevented from suicide by a relative as he struggled in a logging chain attached to a raft of his barn.

Authorities said Anderson told his wife he was going to end his life when she telephoned to report she would not have time to get the overalls before going to work in a war plant. She immediately called a nearby relative, who arrived in time to save Anderson's life.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 19, 1943.

Except that he doesn't rant from a balcony. Badoglio hasn't yet shown much improvement over Mussolini.

A social revolution is defined by one disciple of Noah Webster as "a method of taking special privileges from one crowd and giving them to another."

As one publicist puts it, "In attaining current war production we have accomplished the impossible"—and if that goes on we may yet reach the unattainable.

Rickenbacker Returns and Reports

BACK in the United States after a 50,000-mile tour of world battle fronts, Capt. Edward Rickenbacker is as earnest as ever in his appeal for all-out war effort on the part of every American, contending that if this is brought about the war can be shortened from six months to a year and hundreds of thousands of lives saved.

Capt. Rickenbacker made this tour as an observer for Secretary of War Stimson and his findings may have considerable value in estimating the fighting strength and resources of the United Nations, as compared with the showing being made by the Axis powers.

His report on Russia, where he spent considerable time and had opportunity for close observation, is especially gratifying, in that it not only gives an impression of tremendous reserve power but also leaves no doubt of the determination of Russian officials and people to fight through to complete victory over Germany.

One strange conclusion reached by Capt. Rickenbacker is that "Russia may come out of this war the greatest democracy in the world, while if we continue to move toward the left, as we are doing, we may easily be bolshevik at the end of the war."

Without commenting on that statement, it is presented as a thought that may well be kept in mind as some present trends are noted and some post-war proposals pondered.

As viewed by Capt. Rickenbacker, "at the present rate of the war's progress," defeat of Germany cannot be expected before the fall of 1944, after which he believes it will take at least another year to conquer the "savage and treacherous Japanese."

While all estimates of probable length of the war are guesswork, those in position to be best informed are firm in their belief that the end is by no means in sight and that the greatest battles and greatest losses are still ahead.

This is a disturbing view, but it provides the basis upon which all Americans must proceed if the war is to be shortened by energetic action rather than lengthened by complacent lassitude.

'Pick and Carry' Plan Spreading

A PLAN for harvesting fruits and vegetables now ripening is being tried in some areas with considerable success. It's called the "Pick-and-Carry" plan. The farmer finds out the probable retail price of certain fruits or vegetables and announces that people can have these foods for half or two-thirds the retail cost if they will bring their own baskets and pick them themselves.

Wherever enough gas can be found for a neighborhood car several people gather up baskets and picnic lunches and hasten to the fields. Saturday afternoons and Sundays find more pickers, naturally. But mothers and children also go out through the week. Beans, corn, tomatoes, apples, pears and some other products are being picked and canned in great quantities.

Where crops can be thus harvested by amateurs without damage to trees or to vegetables ripening but not yet ready to pick, it seems like a good idea. The farmer gets a whole-sale price, and foods are thus saved which would otherwise rot on the ground for lack of harvesters.

Don't Forget the Drunken Children

THE LAW properly sets up safeguards for the protection of anyone who is arrested and charged with an offense, minor or major.

Anyone so charged is deemed innocent until proved guilty. The operation of law, under this procedure, is sometimes slow.

On Friday, July 9, all Mansfield was stirred up over the arrest of five boys, ranging in age from 14 to 17, on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

As a result of statements made in court by these boys, in which they claimed to have bought beer at a certain tavern, the tavern keeper was arrested on July 14, charged with illegally selling beer to minors.

His case was set for hearing August 11 but was continued from that date to August 18, because of his attorney being engaged in another trial.

Now there is further continuance because the defendant has asked for a jury trial, to which he is entitled.

As the weeks pass the episode which involved five drunken children has become much less vivid in the public mind. Proper delays in the processes of law should not be permitted to cause forgetfulness of the fact that SOMEBODY violated the law by selling intoxicating drinks to children.

Unsolved Kidnaping Case Recalled

PERHAPS the most talked-about kidnaping case in American history is recalled by the recent death of Walter Ross, a 74-year-old Philadelphia banker.

Nearly 70 years ago his four-year-old brother Charley, while playing with Walter, was enticed into a buggy by two men offering candy, and never seen again. The kidnapers sent ransom notes, and conducted long negotiations with the father. Nothing came of it. Five months later two burglars were killed. One outlived the other by a few minutes and confessed the kidnaping. Only his dead companion, he said, knew where the child was. Nor has anyone known since.

The mystery helped keep the name of Charley Ross alive. Thousands of American children were frightened into staying near home by warnings of the fate of Charley Ross. It was possibly the first kidnaping in this country to receive national publicity, and no other crime, till the Lindbergh tragedy, has touched Americans so deeply.

Quoting a statement that our national debt will reach a peak of 206 billions by the end of next June, Jack Warwick, Toledo Blade paragrapher, comments: "Every day in every way we are getting debtor and debtor."

There's nothing to be disturbed about after all—the directions: "Sandpaper the legs lightly before applying the stain," is found to refer to unfinished furniture.

Political and Military Aspects Of Sicilian Conquest Compared

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

SUPPOSE you had to name the most important result of the Allied conquest of Sicily, what would your answer be? All things considered, it strikes me that we may have to award first place to a political rather than a military outcome—the downfall of fascism and its creator.

Of course, the minute you start making comparisons, you get involved. The collapse of the political "ism" had the effect of rendering Italy virtually impotent militarily, apart from such defense as the Germans chose to make. Thus one might well call it politico-military.

Still, whatever way you designate it, this development must rank close to the top among the important events of the global war. Fascism, and the expansive shoulder of the dozen European dictators, were foundation stones of the Axis attack on civilization. Hitler was the arch gangster, but his fortunes were heavily involved with those of his partner in crime.

The moral effect of this debacle has been tremendous throughout the world. It has convinced the last mother's son among the neutral and non-belligerent nations that the defeat of the Axis is inevitable. It has turned Hitler's small satellites against him. It has given occupied countries courage to carry on against the Boche.

Then there's another wholly political angle. Numerous countries had long been flirting with the Fascist form of government, and some even had inaugurated a modified form of it. Now those countries find the props pulled out from under them, for Fascism has been shown to be a house built upon the sands.

From the strictly military standpoint the rewards of the brilliant conquest of Sicily are great. When this dangerous operation was conceived it had as its objective the reopening of the shipping route through the Mediterranean. This vital thoroughfare passes in the narrow channel between Sicily and Africa, and the big island—heavily held by the Axis—dominated those waters.

For most of the war this route has been closed. Supplies from America and Britain for the Middle East and Far East had to go clear around South Africa instead of taking the short cut through the Mediterranean. This delayed Allied operations in many zones, tied up vast quantities of shipping, and gravely threatened the security of Egypt and the Suez canal.

Now the Allies dominate the Mediterranean, and the enemy's chance that Hitler ever again will edge in on that control. He still has a weak foothold on such islands as Sardinia, Corsica and Crete, but they profit him little because his airforce has been all but knocked out in the Mediterranean theater.

ALL THIS sums up to the fact that the western Allies now are to a considerable degree masters of their own immediate fate. That is to say, with the Mediterranean cleared, and Italy impotent, they have numerous operations from which they can pick their next move, or moves.

We may or may not invade Italy, but it's no longer a necessity if there are other things we would rather do. Italy is incapable of doing further harm, and it isn't essential that the Anglo-British combine go to the trouble of ousting the Nazis from their fortifications along the line of the Po in northern Italy.

Those defenses are solely to keep the Allies from reaching the northern gateways to France, Germany and the Balkans. But there are other routes—so what? True, the airfields of northern Italy would be useful to the Allies for bombing southern and eastern Germany, but they aren't vital.

Even if bungling Badoglio should surrender unoccupied Italy, the Allies could put a moderate army of occupation into the country and let nature take its course.

It's fortunate that all these favorable circumstances exist right now, for any invasion—or invasions—of the continent, other than Italy, must be got under way quickly or the Allies will be stymied by the bad weather of autumn.

A Farmer's Diary By CALVIN A. BYERS

SAW a shiny, newly polished hood protrude from an old friend's old garage, and impulsively remarked, "Did you get a new car?"

"Why no—not in these times, with gasoline rationed and tires impossible—no, it's not new."

This kindly, almost apologetic gaze followed mine. The auto top was carefully covered with a tarpaulin. It was plain that someone had recently dusted and polished the hood.

"Maybe you plan to sell it," I suggested. "It looks as if it has some mileage left."

"It has been good car," he told me then, and moved to lift the hood for my inspection. "Oh, it'd need some overhauling before it made any long trips, but you can see the parts are in good order. My wife and I have gone over a hundred thousand miles in it. Mary says I'm a real good driver. Mary likes to ride—only since she fell and broke her hip, she can't ride anymore."

"But you told me she's doing nicely."

"As well as we dare hope . . . Mary's near seventy. I'll keep the car and take her out in it as soon as I dare. A cousin of ours wanted to buy it—thought we didn't use it enough to pay to keep it here. But I know better. The one thing we couldn't afford to do just now is to sell that car. It stands, to both Mary and me, for happier times."

He pulled a chamois from a corner behind a beam and began to polish a fender. "Mary watches from her window when I'm down here," he said. "The doctor says she's got a chance to take that ride if she keeps on mending . . . for some, but this is the one I know how to drive. It's like one of the family to the old lady and me. I drive it into town with the eggs, once a week, just so I don't forget how. Then I bring it home and put it away, with the nose sticking out, so that Mary can see it's there. I suppose it's the last car I'll ever own. It must last us through."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Marshall Field Included Among Those Decorated By Mussolini

WASHINGTON—The newspaper PM, which has a healthy influence on Washington, has recently got its owner, Marshall Field III of Chicago, in a most embarrassing spot. PM has been riding the shirt off anyone who ever succumbed to the wiles of Mussolini and received from him a Fascist decoration. Especially PM has been riding Generoso Pope, Italian-born New York newspaper publisher, now ardently anti-Mussolini, because he once accepted a decoration from Il Duce and once gave the Fascist salute before the grave of the Unknown Italian Soldier.

What the editors of PM apparently don't know is that their own financial godfather and publisher, Marshall Field, himself, also received a Fascist decoration from Mussolini.

Mr. Field bears the title "Commandatore," and so far as any published records show, he has not returned the decoration to Il Duce.

Marshall Field went even further and was elected president of the Italy-America society on Jan. 27, 1930, when Mussolini was in his hey-day, and when the Italy-America society was considered by many as an adjunct of Fascism.

On Nov. 24, 1931, he was also reported by New York newspapers as being present at a special dinner in honor of Count Dino Grandi, Mussolini's foreign minister and ambassador to London.

On Jan. 26, 1932, Field was re-elected president of the Italy-America society. After this term expired, he was elected a member of the executive committee in 1934.

Even as late as April 21, 1937, after Mussolini had horrified the civilized world with his rape of defenseless Abyssinia, had torn down the peace machinery of the League and was pouring arms into Spain to support a Fascist dictator, Marshall Field continued to consort with Italian Fascists in New York. On that date, he was reported in attendance at a dinner dance in honor of Italian Ambassador Savich given by the Italy-America society.

Yet Marshall Field's newspaper now pounds away almost daily at everyone who ever received a Fascist decoration.

Note: Real fact is that Generoso Pope went to Rome in 1937 at the request of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise to try to dissuade Mussolini from his campaign against the Jews. While there he was invited to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and that was the occasion of PM's picture of him giving the Fascist salute.

Lewis Deserts Wilkie.

ONE of the historic political speeches of the 1940 campaign came when John L. Lewis deserted Roosevelt for Wilkie.

John L. had been one of Roosevelt's most powerful supporters, had contributed more than $250,000 to his first political campaign, had voted the United Mine Workers for him almost to a man. He had received from Roosevelt in return the famous Section 7 A of the NRA giving workers the right to join unions.

But he also realizes that when a soldier is in such a position as his more or less becomes public property. So he has consented gravely to my doing this series about him.

I make no bones about the fact that I am a tremendous admirer of General Bradley. I don't believe I have ever known a person to be so unanimously loved and respected by the men around and under him. In writing of him it would be easy to slip into embarrassing overpraise, so I will deliberately try to avoid that.

GENERAL BRADLEY came to Africa in mid-February and joined the front-line troops at Gafsa, in central Tunisia, during the bitter fighting at El Guettar. He was deputy corps commander, then, under General Patton.

After El Guettar General Patton was called back to work on the preparations for the Sicilian invasion, and General Bradley was put in command of a corps for the final great phase of our fight in northern Tunisia.

Well, what after it was over he was promoted to lieutenant general, given a Distinguished Service Medal, and decorated twice by the French. He has continued to command a corps through the Sicilian campaign, and again he has handled it with distinction. Nobody knows what lies ahead for him, but we who have seen him work cannot believe that his path leads anywhere but upward.

But General Bradley isn't an old fox at all. He is too direct to be a fox. If he has two outstanding traits they are simplicity and honesty. There is no pretense about him, either in method or in personality.

He is just what he is, and that happens to be a plain Middle-Westerner with common sense and common honesty who has studied and practiced all his adult life for the job he is doing now. And he is doing it in just the same calm way he would play a game of bridge or drive a car to the station.

More about General Bradley tomorrow.

One night I was sitting with a bunch of enlisted men in the dusk and one of them said:

"Are the correspondents awake to General Bradley? Do they know what a fine man he is?"

And now and then you'll hear a correspondent remark something like this:

"Say, that Bradley is my man. I think he's an old fox."

They always say it as though they were startled and quite pleased by their own sagacity at suddenly having discovered it.

reveal where the blow will fall," the message said, then added: "People of the occupied country which is to be the first to welcome the armies of liberation will be notified at the last minute."
Until that time arrives, all patriots were asked to aim all their actions toward perfecting preparations for giving assistance to the Allied invaders while at the same time exercising "the greatest care" that they do not fall into the hands of the enemy.
"All those elements which are to contribute in any way whatsoever to the success of eventual operations on French metropolitan territory must be fully equipped to carry out their task," said the broadcast.

"In the past you have heard similar messages from Allied headquarters," the announcer said in conclusion. "You have just heard one of the greatest importance."

The invasion blow could fall from the hands of the victorious Sicilian armies now poised in Messina across from Italy or from the big concentrations of battle-eager troops waiting and training in England. The blow against the continent could come from the south or the west—or both.

Opinion is growing in Britain that there may possibly be more than one diversionary blow accompanying major landings.

German commentators were quoted to the same effect in Stockholm dispatches to London morning newspapers. These commentators were said to predict "a double second front" might be launched by the Allies at any moment.

German commentators also kept up a chatter about an invasion fleet massing in the Mediterranean.

A Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press asserted 22 Allied ships with a total tonnage of 138,000 were damaged Tuesday night by German planes in a raid on the Tunisian port of Bizerte after a major concentration had been observed there. (There was no Allied confirmation of such a raid.)

The Madrid radio, in a broadcast last night heard by the Associated Press, quoted "informed circles" as saying Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had messaged President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill that Allied armies were ready for immediate invasion. The same circles were said to believe the time was only a few hours off.

This broadcast may have been a version of Eisenhower's statement of yesterday in which he said both the American Seventh and British Eighth armies "are ready to go at any minute."

(CBS recorded a London broadcast which said the United Nations radio had instructed the people of Reggio Calabria in southern Italy how to disrupt telephone communications vital to German troops who escaped from Sicily.)

On three nights, Lieutenant Kennedy, once a backstroke man on the Harvard swimming team, swam out into Ferguson passage hoping to flag down PT boats going through on patrol.
On the afternoon of the fourth day, two natives found the survivors and carried to the PT base a message Kennedy crudely cut on a green coconut husk.
Chronologically, Kennedy, Thom and the crewmen told the story this way:
Four Japanese destroyers came down the Blackett strait around the south coast of Kolombangara island about 2:30 a. m. on Aug. 2. In two phases of a confused engagement, the PT's claimed three hits and three probable hits on one of the enemy ships.
It was while the destroyers were returning, probably after delivering supplies and reinforcements near Japan's base at Vila, on Kolombangara, that the enemy ship rammed Kennedy's boat. Ross and Kennedy saw the destroyer coming.
"At first I thought it was a PT," Kennedy said. "I think it was going at least 40 knots. As soon as I decided it was a destroyer, I turned to make a torpedo run."
But Kennedy quickly realized the range was too short for the torpedo to charge and explode.
"The destroyer then turned straight for us," he said.
"It all happened so fast there wasn't a chance to do a thing. The destroyer hit our starboard forward gun station and sliced right through. I was in the cockpit. I looked up and saw a red glow and streamling stacks. Our tanks were ripped open and gas was fluming on the water about 20 yards away."
McMahon, Zinser, Harris and Johnston had been spilled in the water, some on one side of the destroyer, some on the other. Thom swam out after Johnston. Ross went after Zinser.
Kennedy went out to get McMahon who had been at the engine station and was knocked in to the water in the midst of flaming gasoline.
"McMahon and I were about an hour getting back to the boat," (water-tight bulkheads kept the bow afloat) Kennedy said. "There was a very strong current."
After getting McMahon aboard, Kennedy swam out again to get Harris.
The skipper and his men shouted and called for the two missing men but could get no response.
"We seemed to be drifting toward Kolombangara," Kennedy said. "We figured the Japs would be sure to get us in the morning but everybody was tired and we slept."
Just before dawn the current changed to carry the survivors away from the Japanese-held coast. About 2 p. m. Kennedy decided to abandon the bow section and try to reach a small island.
Kennedy swam to the island towing McMahon. The others clung to a plank and swam in a group. It took about three hours to make it. The men stayed on this island until Wednesday when all coconuts on the island's two trees had been eaten.

Late that afternoon they swam to a larger island, where there were plenty of coconuts.
"But it was tough at night on the boys who were hurt because of the rain and cold," Kennedy said.
At night Kennedy put on a life-belt and swam into Ferguson passage to try to signal an expected PT boat.
The two natives found the survivor group Thursday afternoon. On Saturday morning a large canoe loaded with natives brought food and a small kerosene stove and gave the men a real feed and hot coffee. That night a little after midnight our rescue boat guided by a native pilot went in the twisting passages to make contact with Kennedy on an outer island.
Lt. Henry J. Brantingham, Fayetteville, Ark., a Philippine island PT boat veteran, directed the rescue boat mission.

URGES CITY TO SPEED AIRPORT

Labor Groups Vote Support For Project, Ask Council To Hurry Funds.

While the city is trying to find a way to re-locate State Route 13 at the airport site, a new hurdle appeared today for the city in its attempt to acquire 1,000 acres of land needed for the airport expansion.
Mayor W. J. Locke said he had learned that Thomas E. Cowgill, state highway department right-of-way negotiator whom the city had counted on to deal with owners of the land the city must acquire, will not be available until late in the fall and another negotiator must be found immediately.

The state highway department had agreed to "loan" Cowgill, its expert right-of-way man, to the city for the airport job and he had been expected to be ready to start this week.

The mayor said, however, that Cowgill will be busy with an Akron job for the state until late in October. Since that might seriously delay the airport progress here, the mayor said the city would ask the Mansfield Real Estate Board to recommend a Mansfield man to negotiate for the airport land.

City council last month appropriated $500 to employ a negotiator and authorized Mayor Locke, Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff and City Engineer W. C. Stalter to employ a negotiator and arrange the preliminary details of the airport program.

mittee meeting to the city workers.

Following the meeting at which it was decided to defer action on the pay request, councilmen refused to comment, releasing only a brief written statement. Labor representatives and city employees contend they had been promised an open meeting with council on the salary request.

It was revealed at last night's session that Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, wrote a letter to council's finance committee before last week's council committee meeting, urging that pay increases be granted.
Hardy said today he sent copies of the letter to Councilman Russell Porch, chairman of the finance committee, and Shultz, both Republicans. The letter listed eight points favoring increases, among them the rising cost of living, higher income taxes, and competition offered by private industry. He added that public workers usually are the last to receive pay boosts and the first to be reduced when times are bad.

Three Children and Pilot Die In Plane Collision, Plunge.

SAN DIEGO — (AP) — Army interceptor planes banked and turned in the morning sun. Planes in combat maneuvers were no novelty to the 20,000 residents of Linda Vista, a federal housing project.

Two of the P-38's collided, the pilot of one bailed out. The other fell with his crippled ship.

There was a splintering crash and explosion. Three children busy at games were blown to bits. The pilot was blown through a porch roof.

Machine gun ammunition exploded for 20 minutes. No one was reported injured by the bullets however.

The pilot who died in his plane was identified as 1st Lt. John O. Damron, 23, of Williamson W. Va. The other P-38 crashed in a canyon. The pilot suffered only minor injuries.

JAPS DEVELOP HONG KONG AS BIG NAVY BASE

Correspondent Says Enemy Builds Ships In Former British Colony.

(By International News Service) KUKONG, China—Honk Kong is being fast developed by the Japanese to be a first class air and naval base in the Southern Pacific. This fact was gathered by this correspondent during his stay of 12 months in that former British colony after its fall into Japanese hands on Christmas day, 1941.

The Kai Tack airdrome has been greatly enlarged in order to accommodate 2,000 planes. British and Canadian prisoners and Chinese laborers did the work at the expense of adjoining civilian dwellers.

That Hong Kong is to become an air transportation center was officially affirmed by a Japanese spokesman, who added that the port would also become a naval base.

Damaged warships, transports, tankers and freighters are towed daily to Hong Kong for repairs in the naval dockyard, the Taikoo dock and the Kowloon and Whampoa dock, all of which can accommodate vessels up to 20,000 tons. They also are building freighters up to 10,000 tons to replace those sunk by American submarines.

Smaller docks are turning out Chinese sailing junks with auxiliary diesel engines, which are to ply between Hong Kong and ports along the China coast. Raw materials for such construction are abundantly available, while the shallow draught of these wooden ships would make them immune from torpedoes and mines. These junks are counted upon to play a major role to bring about "prosperity in East Asia."

With the operation of these ships, Hong Kong is to be the chief Japanese transit point in south China. Soon this shipping service will be supplemented by civil aviation extended from Formosa.

At present Hong Kong is held by about 2,500 conscripts, 500 marines and a flotilla of three small destroyers and one ocean going gunboat. The flagship of the south China command, the Kuma, was sunk off Cebu in the Philippines on April 11, 1942, by American torpedo boats.

ITS PLOWSHARES TO SWORDS AT OHIO FACTORY

Old Biblical Saying Reversed as Implement Plant Turns Out Sturdy Bayonets.

(By United Press)

ASHTABULA—The old Biblical saying about turning swords into plowshares is reversed at the Ashtabula Ordnance plant of the American Ordnance plant of the company, one of the nation's leading manufacturers of farm implements in peacetime, is now busily engaged in making a new type bayonet for American combat troops.

Until a short time ago, American fighting men wielded a 16-inch blade, but recent experience in the Pacific area jungles and in North Africa showed the need for a better model.

The Ordnance plant is now turning out hundreds of thousands of the new replacement blades, which is shorter, sturdier, lighter and more versatile than the old bayonet.

A tour of the plant conducted by Lieut. Col. T. H. Eickhoff of the Cleveland Ordnance district showed nothing to suggest weapon-making. There were no forges, and the men with the large and shrewy hands were conspicuous by their absence.

Forgings for the knife are made by the Kelly Axe and Tool Works of the company at Charleston, W. Va., and shipped here, where a force of less than 200 workers, including office personnel, turns out more than 1,500 blades a day.

Seventy per cent of the plant workers are women—and plant officials had nothing but praise for their craftsmanship. They can handle the blades as easily as kitchen knives.

"A year ago, the majority of these girls had never seen machines like they are handling today," said A. F. Fifield, company president.

The women workers are lined along a huge, light and airy workroom and operate the lathes, drill presses and other complicated machinery necessary for the 96 operations required to make one of the grim little weapons.

Each bayonet is put through exhausting tests before being shipped to a battle front. In one test the blade, five times the thickness of a regular knife and strong enough for chopping and hammering, is bent to a radius of 18 inches.

If the blade whips back straight it is approved. If not, it's rejected—but there are few rejections, a tribute to the plant's war-conscious workers.

NEW GOLF BALL

AKRON—(INS)—Postwar golf balls may have centers of liquid cane sugar inside a core of rubber. Dr. Richard A. Crawford, a research scientist at the B. F. Goodrich company plant, has developed the new manufacturing method.

Golf balls with liquid centers are superior to those having solid cores, golf authorities agree. The new center will be permanently liquid even at low temperatures, the inventor declared.

CAMP BIZERTE TEACHES MEN TO BE TOUGH

Training Prepares Them For Rugged Army Life at the Front.

(By International News Service)
CAMP BIZERTE, Colo. — Some 30 miles east of Denver as the jeep flies, through shimmering desert-like heat and over wind-swept sand and prairies, you may come, quite suddenly, on Bizerter. Not the North African outpost to be sure—but Camp Bizerter, an army training post designed to give soldiers, battle-bound, a taste of life in Tunisia or some overseas war area.

Camp Bizerter, said to be the first of its kind in the Rocky mountain region, was an innovation of Brig. Gen. Albert Sneed, new commanding officer of Lowry Field, and will be used as an auxiliary training camp of Lowry, the large army air force technical training command field.

General Sneed, in making official disclosure of the camp to a group of newsmen, stated that after personal observations in Australia and other war areas, he felt that Camp Bizerter would provide a type of training that the American soldier seemed to need most.

Sneed pointed out that it was revealed in Tunisia and other front-line areas that a soldier coming directly from the comparative comforts and conveniences of a standard army base, with its extensive equipment, etc., was sometimes ill-prepared to meet the primitive living conditions encountered in a war theater.

At Camp Bizerter, the soldier is taught to put his classroom theories into actual practice. He is required to learn complete independence in all things. Thus, having no extensive equipment or facilities to rely on, he must construct what he needs from raw materials at hand.

A great deal of the soldier's time is spent in making the camp invisible from enemy observers. According to Capt. Vernon P. Doughty, Bizerter's commanding officer, the camp has been constructed so as to be completely camouflaged from air and ground. Well-worn trails from the mess area to the men's tents, for instance, are strewn with grass and small trees are transplanted to aid in the camouflage.

Capt. Doughty revealed that armored students are given the opportunity to load, camouflage and service planes under as near actual battle conditions as possible. The students, having no tools or equipment such as would be available at a main base, are taught to improvise make-shift equipment to load bomb racks, make repairs and replacements on planes.

The old saying, "An army travels on its stomach" makes the "kitchen" one of the most interesting features of the camp's training.

Here in the jungle kitchen, student cooks learn how to whip up a meal for 500 men or more starting with nothing more than a match and an old oil can. Out of an oven constructed of earth and a discarded oil drum, and kitchen utensils made from old tomato cans, plus a primitive barbecue spit or two, anything from a fancy tea to a full size troop meal can be prepared. The post is no picnic area. There are no hot showers, warm beds or handy USO centers. It is strictly "in the rough." The soldiers learn to pitch pup tents, eat from mess kits, prepare a camp sanitation program, work on a commando style obstacle course, and in general find out how many things an enterprising soldier can do for himself when everything isn't "cut and dried" and a matter of routine. Capt. Doughty said that henceforth a period at Camp Bizerter would be considered as a necessary post-graduate training course for all air force students, prior to overseas duty.

DESTROYER GETS ADDED TRIBUTE

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 18.—When the U.S.C. Paul Hamilton was recently launched at the Charleston Navy Yard, the destroyer received an added tribute. Mrs. W. Dewar Gordon, of Charleston, sponsored the ship which is named for her great grandfather, an early governor of South Carolina and a former secretary of the navy. While she stood waiting to christen the destroyer, her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton Robertson, of Summerville, S. C., handed her a ring. She delayed taking hold of the champagne bottle long enough to reach out, rub the ring against the side of the ship.

PLATE CLUB

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18.—The families of many employees of the Curtis-Wright corporation are really all-out for victory. To conserve food supplies, the plant recently announced formation of a Clean Plate club for youngsters of employees. There are no dues to pay, no box tops to save, no coupons to clip. The youngster fills out his application, and pledges himself to clean his plate at every meal—and he's in.

OVERSEAS BOB: Lura de Gez designed this neat hardbo for WACS and WAVES who must "toll their own."

By BETTY CLARKE
(AP Beauty Editor)
The new "Overseas Bob," a WAC hardbo, is designed so that even an African barber can trim it without spoiling its contour. A hair style short enough to comply with army regulations, it can be arranged to suit every type. The thin-faced girl can fluff her hair out at the sides and the fuller-faced type can roll it neatly. In any case there won't be any untidy strands to muss up a jacket collar.

Friends Learn of Vows Read for Two Teachers

Two former teachers in the Mansfield Public Schools were united in marriage Aug. 17 at Cambridge, O. At that time nuptial vows were exchanged by Miss Helen V. McCleary, who formerly lived at 99 West Luther place, and Lueli, James Herbert Perrill, U. S. army air force, who had resided at 279 West Third street, before entering service last March.

The ceremony was read at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. McCleary at 2:30 o'clock. The bride approached the improvised altar to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march.

Palms and ferns were placed in front of the fireplace and a large bouquet of white gladioli graced the mantle shelf. Before the service Miss Lillian Neyman, pianist, played Schubert's "Serenade" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." The single ring service was performed by Rev. Thurman Alexander, pastor of the Bay Village, O., Methodist church.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a two-piece frock of aqua crepe with accessories of cocoa brown. Braiding of same material formed a yoke on the jacket fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves. Her hat was large, trimmed in veiling and her corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Thurman Alexander (Dorothy Neyman) as the bride's attendant was attired in a brown ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For her daughter's marriage Mrs. McCleary chose a frock of light blue with white accessories. Mrs. Perrill selected blue with harmonizing accessories. White flowers composed their corsages.

Howard Perrill of Washington, D. C., served as his brother's best man.

An informal reception immediately followed the exchange of vows. Before the wedding a bridal dinner was held at Colonial Inn, Old Washington.

During the evening the couple left for a trip to Florence, S. C., where they will make their home. For traveling the new Mrs. Perrill selected a tailored tan gaberdine suit and cocoa brown accessories.

The bride is an alumna of Principia Junior College, St. Louis, Mo., and Muskingum college. She attended Ohio State university and for the past few years has been a teacher in the Mansfield public schools.

Lieut. Perrill, is stationed at Florence, S. C., as statistical officer in the army air forces.

He received his masters' degree at Miami university, Oxford, and is a member of the Mansfield Masonic lodge.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Perrill, Washington, D. C.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddles)
By ADLE GARRISON

"You mean—" I began inanely enough, for there was no reason why I should not know exactly what Dicky meant.

With a grave face he tapped the top of my head lightly with his knuckles.

"Apartment to let—unfurnished!" he gibed. "But I'll forgive you on the grounds of extreme mental fatigue and strain. When your brain cells start functioning again, you'll realize that if the Chief pulls off that Meredith stunt successfully this afternoon, in addition to this one, he'll have little Ruthie so tied up in knots that it will take the Lord High Executioner himself to untie her."

"And I hope he has to use an axe," he finished, so viciously that I shuddered even as I laughed at his vehemence.

"Dicky Disapproves."

"You don't like to see even a rat, male or female, get its comeuppance, do you?" he said, a bit disapprovingly, although with tenderness in his voice.

"I wouldn't like to see the punishment, no," I agreed, "but if you think I'd lift a finger to save Ruth Hayes from any fate that's coming to her, you have three more things coming, that's all!"

He laughed as he opened the door. "That's the stuff," he said, and then he spoke to the guard he had stationed outside.

"All hushed, and we're leaving. Notify the manager we're through with the rooms, and that my father-in-law will see him later."

"Okay," the man replied, and Dicky said no more until we were in the taxi. Then:

"Dad doesn't want you to come directly to the Lansfield," he told me. "I'm taking you first to the pharmacy a few blocks away, from which he's telephoning."

"I suppose that's because of Milner's inquiries," I said in a low voice, although I knew the taxi driver was one my father trusted men.

Dicky pretended to screw a monocle into his eye, and look at me through it.

"Aha! Brain cells showing signs of life!" he teased. "Yes, that's exactly why. He wants to get you back into the hotel with our Milner's knowledge, so he still will believe Katherine's fiction of your headache."

"I wonder how he's going to manage it?" I said worriedly.

"You're still not hitting on all six," Dicky said. "Suppose you leave that part of it to Dad. He's a pretty able citizen, you know."

"Nevertheless," I insisted, "I'll be glad to be back in my sitting room again with Milner believing I've not been out of it this morning."

"You'll have your wish pretty soon," Dicky replied, and then fell silent until the taxi drew up in front of a large pharmacy into which Dicky hurried me, telling the taxi man to wait.

There were refreshment booths away in the back, and in one of them we found my father and Adams seated across the table from each other. In front of them were glasses of chocolate, which I was sure were for camouflage.

"Sit down," my father invited, "and I'll order more chocolate—or would you rather have some thing else?"

We both agreed on the chocolate and he gave the order. Then when the attendant had gone, he spoke in low tones.

"We have plenty of time," he said, "but not for me to hear anything that has happened. I am going directly back to the Lansfield and get Milner into his office. On the way I shall give a signal to one of our men to go to a public phone and call Adams here. Richard, you will not wait for the signal, but go directly back to the Lansfield alone and up to the balcony suite. As soon as Adams receives the telephone he will bring Margaret to that basement entrance communicating with the hotel, and the way will be made clear for him to bring her up the service elevator so that none of Milner's listening posts will catch on to what is being done."

Margaret turned to me. "As soon as you get into the suite I'll go from Katherine's that Milner wanted of you when he was trying to find you. At the same time Adams will come down to Milner's office on some pretext, and at his appearance I'll know you are upstairs and will come up immediately. Then I can hear your reports and we can map the next step in our campaign."

He rose as he spoke and Dicky got up also. But my father waved him back.

"Wait two minutes, Richard," he said. "We don't want to go back together."

Just as you say, Dad," and Dicky seated himself again, keeping an eye on my wrist watch as my father walked away.

And in a minute to the second he rose, waved an airy farewell at me, and spoke gravely to Adams.

"Take good care of her, Adams," he said.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve aching backache quickly, as they discover, that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. When they become weak, they permit the poisonous matter to build up in the system, which causes backache, rheumatism, and the many, many, many other ailments that come from a weak kidney. It is not until the kidneys are so weak that the body is unable to get rid of the waste from your blood, that you are in danger of a permanent cure. Get Dose's Pills.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

"BLACK-JACKED BY HIM"

There are hands on which you have no way to make your contract working alone, but which can bring the desired result if you can get one of the defenders to help you by squeezing his partner.

Such an artifice is sometimes called a "suicide squeeze" because by means of it the opponents kill themselves. A better name, perhaps, is the other one of "cannibal squeeze" because it involves one opponent devouring his mate. But if the devourer really had available an alternative play which would not have hurt his partner, the latter is justified in saying he was "black-jacked."

That was the bidding used by Carlton Russell, of St. Petersburg,

♠ A J 5	♠ 9 7 6 5

Fla. who employs a No Trump bid, which must be kept open by his partner. But the point of this deal was his play.

Mr. Russell let West take two hearts and won the third. He had figured a possible way to add a ninth trick to the eight certain ones, even if the clubs would not break. Two club tops brought a diamond discard from West, then three diamond tricks ensued. East had tossed two spades on heart tricks so Mr. Russell had the situation pretty well figured out.

East was keeping three clubs and two spades. West three spades, undoubtedly including the K-Q, and two hearts. Then the club Q was cashed, and East thrown in with the club 4.

East could not resist the temptation to cash his club J, and by doing so, he squeezed West. The latter had to toss a card from the spade K-Q and the heart 10. Dummy, discarding after him, held the Playing at a hopeless 7-No Trumps, how can South limit his loss to one down on this deal after West leads the spade Q?

Spade A-J and the heart 5, so any discard would give dummy the last two tricks. Of course, East could have beaten this by letting his club J go by default and instead returning one of his two spades on the eleventh trick. As it was, he "black-jacked" his partner, both literally and figuratively.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Aug. 20.

A particularly auspicious time for seeking promotion, favors, and other tokens of good will and esteem from those in high places, either in business, employment or from group, community or public officials. All should be kindly disposed, especially to those who have worked hard and faithfully for rewards of merit. The accent is placed this day on courtship, romance, popularity and charm, with all the claims of youth, its ideals and aspirations—under splendid auguries for fulfillment.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of advancement, promotion, preferment and favors from those in power and authority, in employment, in public posts or with other influential personages. Seek such emoluments and aims with the force of personality, with charm and magnetic approach, as these are under splendid stimulus for achievement of hopes and wishes. Romance, courtship or marriage should bring much practical satisfaction as well as youthful ideals and ambitions.

A child born on this day should have a successful and happy life, with possible honors and distinction, based on its innate talents as well as its charming and convincing personality. It may have an artistic or literary career.

Additional 4,000 has been staked for strip-crop plowing next spring, says Irving B. Stafford, state soil conservationist.
